It is assumed by politicians that the appoint ments which the president now has at his disposal will be distributed with an eye to strengthening his position with relation to s renomination. That Mr. Harrison appreciate the influence of appointments on politics is shown, it is claimed, by his decision to hold se he might make at this time until over those he might make at the fiter the November elections.

Mr. Blaine the Only Obstacle. It is generally conceded by politicians that Mr. Blaine is the only person whom Mr. Harson has anything to fear from in the next reublican national convention, and that his nger in that quarter lies not in Mr. Blaine's enxiety for the nomination, but in the popular timent in favor of the selection of the Maine statesman regardless of his preferences n the matter. Mr. Blaine is doing nothing to strengthen or sustain this sentiment, so his friends say, and it is understood that there will be no resistance offered to any efforts that may be made in behalf of Mr. Harrison to overcome it. It is believed by the politithe convention Mr. Harrison will devote himself assiduously to strengthening himself in those localities where Blaine has the strongest hold upon the people, believing that if he can get support from one or more of the Blaine strongholds everything else will fall naturally

A Former Experience. He had a little experience of this sort at the last national convention. When the California delegation voted for him the rest all came tumbling. It is believed that he now contemplates using the two cabinet appointments, and probably some of the other appointments, to strengthen himself in New England and on the Pacific coast. Circumstances may arise which will make the president want Mr. Miller to remain in the cabinet, and, of course, if they should, the attorney general would accommodate himself to the president's interests; but the present expecta-tion of both the president and Mr. Miller is that the latter will retire from the cabinet to

The Probable Bidders. It is believed then, that a California man, probably Mr. Estee, and Governor Cheney, of New Hampshire, will be appointed to the cabinet vacancies. It is urged by Senator Chandler that the appointment of Mr. Cheney would greatly assist him in his work for the president in New England, and that Secretary Proctor is of the same opinion.

Tammany hall is on the run. They did not have any use for Grover Cleveland until they found they had to find somebody to protect their, for a great many people considered the respectable stand between them and the people; and they, therefore, hold out their arms to Carlisle, Gorman and Cleveland and try to make you believe this is next year and that we are in the midst of a presidential camp ign. It is anything to turn the eye of the people away from the real issue, which is: Shall Tammany hall rule the state, as she has ruled the city? That is the issue. American people are too intelligent to be deceived, and I believe that a great many democrate are too loyal and too true to the old flag to be cajoled and deceived by the death-bed repentance of Tammany hall.

I propose to Mr. Cleveland a highly interesting question for him to take up and examine and cogitate in secret—what will they do with him next year if Tammany hall wins this fall? [Applause.] It will be a question pleasant for Governor Hill to take home with him—[applause]—but I don't want to get too deeply involved in these democratic mysteries. I don't like Tammany hall, and there is no love lost between us.

DR. BRIGGS'S TRIAL.

The Doctor's Protest Read-Arrangement for the Trial.

New York, October 6.-The New York presbytery resumed its work at 11 o'clock this orning. After some routine work, Bev. A. Schiland, of the committee appointed to answer Dr. Briggs's protest of May 11th, arose to read his report. Dr. Briggs interrupted him by asking that in a spirit of tair play his protest be read because many who were now present had never heard it.

By general consent the protest was read by the secretary. In it Dr. Briggs protested against the appointment of a committee to prosecute him for various reasons, among them that he was not given sufficient time to answer the charges against him, and that advantage was taken of his absence in Europe.

Mr. Schiland then read the answer. It arges that no charges had been presented when the protest was made and no thought of protest was necessarily maintained.

st was necessarily maintained was a committee of inquir only to consider the inaugural address in its relation to the Confession of Faith, which was a subject of general criticism and of widespread dissent, and of whose apparent teaching a number of presbyteries had already entered a most emphatic protest and beaching a number of pressyteries had already entered a most emphatic protest and adverse judgment. This committee had to deal with Dr. Briggs, not personally, but with the contents of an address publicly and officially made by him. If this address was misrepresented or misunderstood, it was surely a great concern to Dr. Briggs, but he wrote to the committee that even if he was in better health he would not attend. Dr. Briggs, certainly gave assent not attend. Dr. Briggs certainly gave assent to the correctness of the address as published although he pretended that "it would seem that your committee were absolutely appointed to consider my inaugural address, and not to consider any explanation of it I might desire to make." For this and other reasons the presbytery was entirely proper and according to the usage of the denomination. Dr. Birch, chairman of the prosecuting committee, announced that he was about to committee, announced that he was about to serve Dr. Briggs with a copy of the indictment, and by arrangement with the accused the trial had been set down for Wednesday, November 4th, at 10 o'clock, in the Scotch church. It was to be public, in all probability, although the manner of conducting the trial is yet to be decided by a committee, consisting of the moderator, his clerks and the pastor of the Scotch church.

THE FAMINE IN RUSSIA. It May Cause a Revolution-Horrible Stories of Distress. Boston, October 6.-Cable advices from Russia received at the Jewish colony in North End say that entire states are being deserted on account of the famine. They also assert that a new law has been made forbidding the sowing of seed this fall, so that the acreage next year will not be sufficient for the home next year will not be sufficient for the home supply, still less for export. So great is the distress that the people have been driven to pillaging each other, first setting fire to villages and then robbing the inhabitants. The distress is a greater menace-to the government than ail the effects of the nihilists. The famine may cause a revolution where the love of liberty has failed. Ald is being sent in by Holland Jews and nihilist societies of Armania. The latter have sent $5.300. menia. The latter have sent $5,300.

The market during the morn ciosing prices. The market during the morning hour followed Liverpool, which opened lower and recovered. We did the same, except that we moved with rather more decision and vigor. Early estimates of port receipts were comparatively small, and the market having received a stronger impulse, gathered strength with the rise. Frost accounts were dispelled, yet some bears got uneasy and began to cover.

There was also a little manipulation for higher prices, proceeding, it was said, from parties who were anxious to make a marke to sell on; and the close was at about the best figures of the day. Port receipts again proved much larger than the early estimates, and re-ceipts at the three principal interior towns ceipts at the three principal interior towns were 50 per cent greater than last year, but the figures had no effect, as they were offset by an estimate of only 9,000 bales at New Orleans temorrow. Weather at the south was generally cloudy, threatening rain. Spot cotton was firm, but quiet.

The cattle were shipped in Smith's City if he would come here with him to see the cattle. The cattle were shipped in Smith's name, who sold them, pocketed the money and disappeared. Chipman is about twenty-five years old and is a Mormon. His father is one of the wealthiest and most influential men in his section of the country.

Three companions of his also drank the mixture and were taken violently ill, one of them named McKeague, being still in a serious condition. Nothing New from Chile.

Nothing New from Chile.

Washington, October 6.—There is nothing in approved dispatches received at the state and navy departments from Chile to indicate any pronounced change in the situation there, so far as the relations between Minister Egan and the junta are concerned. The story cabled from Paris by the Dunlap-Dalziel agency that Balmaceda is in hiding in the United States legation at Santiago is absolutely discredited at the department of state.

Two cablegrams were received at the department from Minister Egan announcing the suicide of the ex-president, and in addition ministers from European countries sent the same information in the most positive form to their governments. Although the ways of diplomacy are sometimes a trifle devious, it cannot be presumed for a moment that all of the representatives of the powers in Santiago would unite in a false official statement of the 120t.

RALEIGH, N. C., October 6 .- [Special.]-Colonel L. L. Polk publishes a lengthy statement, in which he says:

"It has been charged in the newspapers that I skulked the battle of Winchester of September 19, 1864; that I was hidden behind a stone fence on the morning of that day, when my regiment had gone on and was engaged in battle: that Brigadier General Bryan Grimes saw me there and had a conversation with me; that I claimed to have a chill; that General Grimes called special attention to the to court martial me for it, and would summon Devereux as a witness; that for some reason I was not court martialed, but was allowed to

What the Official Record Shows. "I have in my possession the official recorof a court martial which proves, on the sworn testimony of General Grimes himself, and fourteen other witnesses, that the above charge contains no truth. The official record shows that the charges were: 'Misbehavior in the presence of the enemy,' and 'absence without leave.' General Grimes makes allusion, either in charges or specifications, or in his sworn testimony, to any lack of duty on my part during the morning. Upon my petition he was instructed to try the case the court martial of Rodes division, and thus was allowed to select officers who should try the case. Brigadier General W. R. Cox was appointed president.

Elected to the Legislature. "The record shows that up to September 18th I was acting adjutant of the Forty-third North Carolina regiment, being then lieutenant in Company I. On that day I received a certificate from the sheriff of Anson county, showing that I had been elected a member the legislature. That day I turned over my horse, books, etc., to the proper authorities, preparatory to leaving for Raleigh on the 19th. The commanding officer of the regiment released me from duty, and on the morning of the 19th I had prepared to start home, having previously filed the proper application for re-lease from duty. Finding that a battle was imminent, I went to the commandant of the regiment and asked his opinion as to whether ought to go into battle. He said I was under no obligation whatever to go, but suggested that I speak to General Grimes it. After the line of battle was formed I approached General Grimes, and asked his advice as a friend. He advised me to go in, saying there might be talk if I did not.

For some reason the regime dvance until I went in front and called to the color sergeant to follow me. I led the charge through open ground for two or three hours under heavy and destructive fire. I was the only officer seen in front during the charge, and remained in front until the line was ordered to hait. When ordered to fall back by General Grimes I assisted him in rallying the regiment on a line indicated by him, until the commandant of the regiment, who was my former captain, was brought to me near Gen eral Grimes, and, being, as he thought, fatally wounded, implored me to take him to the rear, nsisting that I had no business there, and ap pealing to me as a brother Mason.

An Errand of Mercy. "I took him from the field to the hospital. Soon after reaching the hospital the report came that our line had been broken and the wounded should get out if possible. I seized my pistol and sword and, going out, met some flying cavalrymen. I drew my pistol on an er and halted and held him until our troops came up. At the close of the argument pro and con, Justice Jackson sat up straight and looked upon the vast audience which had been thrilled for more than two hours by the able speeches which had been made during the morning. If stillness prevailed during the speeches, there was a solemn hush within the valls of the building when the court made its first utterance.

Received with Applause. As soon as the court closed the announce-ment, there was a burst of applause, which was checked as soon as possible by the com-mands for "order in court." There will probably be a hard fight for the child who resembles his grandfather.

LEXINGTON, N. C., October 6.—[Special.]

Lexington, N. C., October 6.—[Special.]—The Women's Missionary Society of the Athens district convened in the Methodist church at this place, Saturday, October 3d.

Some thirty delegates from the various auxiliary societies in the district were present and a large attendance of visitors and interested persons. Mrs. W. F. Bonnell and Mrs. Morgan Callaway, both officers of the North Georgia Conference Women's Missionary Society.

The deliberations of this coincience has direct reference to the proper management and expansion of the missionary work which these consecrated women represent. They certainly evinced great zeal and enthusiasm, and from their reports showed that much has already been accomplished.

"Aunt Susie," the children's friend, spoke beautifully and touchingly to the children and young people in the afternoon, which resulted in the organization of a large juvenile society in this place.

The whole community was favorably impressed by all the exercises of the conference, and Lexington takes on a new spirit and impulse from the presence and association of these earnest Christian women.

YESTERDAY'S SPORTING EVENTS.

The Baseball Season Fast Drawing to Close.

It Was a Busty Day.

NEW YORK, October 6.—The track was very dusty and as the horses made the turn near the clubhouse little or nothing could be seen of them until the dust had settled. The afternoon proved mntil the dust had settled. The afternoon proved a very unprofitable one for backers of public form, for but one favorite and a second choice succeeded in getting home first. Judge Morrow, choice of the crowd for the second race, finished fifth. After the race, Covington was called into the stand for an alleged foul and fined $50. Mursher stakes for three-year-olds brought out a very poor field. Picnicker was a popular selection at 6:05. Rey Del Rey and Pessara were next in demand, the latter being second choice at 5:02, and Rey del Rey at 3 to 1. The race produced a good finish and to a majority of those near the stand Rey Del Rey seemed to have won by a head, but the official placing made it a dead heat, with Picknicker third. The owners of the horses decided to divide the purse, and this was done with the bets.

The board of control held a meeting last night and cautioned a number of riders as to their four iding of late. The dust was so thick in the last race that the starting post could not be seen, so no time was taken.

He takes a very optimistic view of the matter, and thinks that the benefits accruing from the removal of the Richmond and Danville offices to Atlanta will be incalculable. THE HOWELL CASE.

A Bloody Chapter in Warrenton's History Recalled.

THE SLAYER OF M'GRATH ON TRIAL

For His Life-The Stirring Particulars of a Thrilling Affair-Letters Which Tell an Ugly Tale.

WARRENTON, Ga., October 6 .- [Special.]-The superior court of Warren county convened here yesterday, and Judge Ham Mc-Whorter, Solicitor General Bill Howard and full complement of lawyers are in attendance. Peculiar interest attaches to this session of court by reason of a very sensational case, the trial of which begins tomorrow.

It is the case of A. V. Howell, charged with the murder of Captain W. J. McGrath, the tragic killing of whom by Howell occurred in Warrenton on the morning of June 11th last. The grand jury took up Howell's case immediately after organizing yesterday and in the afternoon found a true bill for murder. Howell, as stated in THE CONSTITUTION yesterday, was brought to Warrenton from Augusta, whese he had been in jail, Sunday fternoon, and is now in jail here. He was met at the train by his wife and a large number of friends who afterwards called Captain John McGrath, of Charle C., father of the slain man, arrived in Warrenton yesterday afternoon, accompanied by the little child of his dead son. Captain McGrath, Sr., is the owner of a fleet of steamers that ply the coasts of Charleston, S. C., and is an old gentleman of respect able appearance. Although very quiet in his demeanor he takes his son's tragic death very hard and expresses a determination to spare no means in the prosecution of Howell.

He has employed Hon. H. T. Lewis, of Greensboro, one of the best criminal lawyers in Georgia, to assist Solicitor General Howard secution, and the combined legal strength and matchless oratory of these gentle men will be hard to cope with, under circumstances ever so favorable.

The defense will be represented by Colonel E. P. Davis, of the local bar, and Hon. T. M. Hunt, of Sparta, both of whom, though young in the rofession, are able, and will make a strong fight for their client.

Mrs. Howell, the wife of the prisoner, was out driving with her younger sister yesterday afternoon, and appeared to be cheerful and timent is divided in the county as to the result of Howell's trial.

There are two factions in the county which sprang up from the Cody-McGregor affair some years since, and these clashing contingents will have a marked bearing on the result of the judicial investigation.

McGrath was removed to the hallway of the courthouse, where, after speaking a few words, he breathed his last.

The wife of the unfortunate man was in millinery store not fifty paces away, and heard every shot that landed a widow and orphan-making bullet in the vitals of her hus-band. Her piercing shrieks could be heard for several blocks when the news of the tragedy was gently broken to her.

After emptying his pistol, Howell coolly turned on his heel and walked away, reload ing his pistol of he went. On the street he was met by Captain T. N. Shuoley, the town marshal, who put him under arrest.

The letter which Howell claims that Mc Grath wrote to his wife and which fell int his hands, thereby bringing about the tragedy indecent. Mrs. Howell told her hus band at the time that had persecuted her for a long time with letter of a similar character and denied bitterly that her conduct had been such as to warrant ad vances from McGrath.

It is given out that the defense will offer this letter and others of similar character as evidence of instification on Howell's part, and the defense, it is stated, will offer witnesses whose testimony will develop the fact that McGrath sent parties to Atlanta to secure the address of Mrs. Howell in order to get in communication with her. On the other hand the state will introduce about twenty letters from Mrs. Howell to McGrath, one of which, it is claimed, invited the answer which fell into Howell's hands and precipitated the shooting.

The contents of some of these letters have been reported to your correspondent, and if read in the courthouse will cause hardened men to blush with shame. They abound in vulgarity of the most hideous type, and unfold the sickening details of a criminal intimacy of long standing between the writer and Mo Grath.

The unfaltering devotion of his brother, Mr. Floy Howell, is a striking illustration that "blood is thicker than water." and has won for him the unstinted admiration of the entire county.

There are many rumors in circulation with the case that give other phases of a more sensational nature, but your correspondent prefers to record only the facts that he knows will b brought out in the trial. L. H. PATTILLO.

CAPTAIN J. B. A Committee Makes an Investigation and a Report, but the Facts Are Not Given Out.

There's trouble in the Atlanta Zouav

It may be mutiny or it may be justihable rebellion. Captain Hollis and a big element of the company are at war and both factions seem to be fighting under the black flag. And it's death to one side or the other. Members of the company want Captain Hollis's resignation, and Captain Hollis is after the scalps of the members who are seeking that paper which would dissolve the relationship now existing between the company and its commandant. The trouble has been in actual existence for a year and a half.

But it came to a head last night, and within the next few days, like a rosebud, will open to the light of the world.

The Atlanta Zouaves is one of Georgia's most celebrated military panies. It is beyond all odds the finest and best drilled zouave company in the south. In fact, there are very few companies in the union which can compare with it in the harmony and perfection of its evolutions in the irregular tactics which ooth mystify and delight every one who sees a zouave drill. The company was organized in 1887, and was the first zonave ompany to enter into Atlanta's military history. It was made up of young, strong, athletic boys and men. Within a remark ably short time Captain Hollis, who had been unanimously elected captain, had the satisfaction of realizing that he was at the head of the pick zonave company of the south. The boys took a deep pride in their work and Captain Hol.

announced that they were going to Kansas City to enter the big drill everybody in Atanta was willing to put money on the boys' work in the contest.

The night the Zouaves left there was a big rowd at the union depot to see them off Ladies were there to wish them luck and give them a parting salute with their dainty glove and sweetly perfumed kerchiefs. Captain Hollis did not leave with the company, telling the boys that he would follow in a day or two, and assuring them that he would join them in time to lead them in the big drills on the Kansas City campgrounds. But the captain did not go. All during the Kansas City encampment, impatiently the Zouaves awaited Captain Hollis's coming. One prize drill after another took place, but the Zouaves could not because they had no commanding officer. Upon several occasions the com pany went upon the parade grounds, under command of Lieutenant White, and gave exhibition drills. These drills always made the company go up in the pool selling until it was definitely and generally known that it was a company without a captain. Then the boys were called the wards of the

The company became highly incensed at Captain Hollis's failure to appear, and before camp was left in Kansas City there was talk of a request for his resignation. After the company came home this talk was renewed. but when Captain Hollis made an explanation to the members it ceased.

But the company was not satisfied. Time and time again the talk broke out anew. With the Tybee encampment it came up again, and a few weeks ago at a meeting of members of the company charge were preferred against the captain and a committee was appointed to look into the matter. That committee did its work, and last night was ready with the report.

The exact nature of the charges and the exact report the committee declines to give out.

Two days ago Mrs. Alex Ripley who lives at Kirkwood, gave birth to a sweet little baby. Dr. J. H. Green, who was the attending physician, called the day following and left prescriptions, one for the mother and one for the baby. The prescription for Mrs. Ripley contained a portion of morphine which wa intended to give her immediate relief from some uncontrollable pain, and also to produce rest and sleep. Mrs. Ripley's mother, who was with her during her illness, prepared and administered directions.

But shortly after the first dose was given she found that a mistake had been made, and that the dose intended for the mother had been given to the baby. The baby soon developed signs of poisoning, and Dr. Green was again sent for. On the arrival of the physician he found the baby in a very dangerous condition, and at once realized that the mistake had been a serious one, and with prompt and earnest effort he tried to save the life of the infant, but all efforts were in vain. The dose given had contained sufficient morphine to cause the baby's death in a short time. short time.

A FLEET FLYER.

M. F. Graham Gave Patrolman Sheridan Last night about 9 o'clock a boy rushed out on the street and called Patrolman Sheridan, stating that he was wanted in George's saloon When the patrolman arrived the proprietor pointed out a tall, stylishly dressed young man whom he said had been making himself very obnoxious to the customers and em-ployes of the place. The patrolman walked up to the man and catching him by each lappel of the coat, said: "I want you. sir."

"I want you, sir."

"No you don't," replied the man, and with a tremendous jerk and wheel broke loose and with a bound made his exit out at the back door of the saloon and took down the alley at a triple double-quick speed.

W. S. CLEVELAND ARRESTED.

The Famous Minstrel Has a Decidedly Un-W. S. Cleveland, the popular minstrel man, ran amuck an Atlanta policeman yesterday. Mr. Cleveland was standing on the steps DeGive's Opera house, where his company was playing an engagement. He was giving some instructions to his treasurer. Patrolman

Mr. Cleveland being suddenly interrupted in his conversation, didn't understand that he was doing anything to which exceptions could be taken. He said that he had the theater rented, it was his place of business, and he saw no good reason why he should move.

Patrolman Jordan told him if he did not obey the orders he would be arrested. This angered the minstrel man, and he promptly told the patrolman that if he wanted to arrest

SENOR PAYEN. In 1884, when the Mexican government conded to send an exhibit to New Orleans, it dso decided to send a band. There were two gular military bands at the City of Mexico, hat of the regiment of engineers under the eadership of Lapradores, and that of the Eighth Cavalry regiment under the firection of Signor Payen, each sighth Cavan, direction of Signor Payen, band composing forty musicians. Payen, band the younger of the two, was being the younger of the two, was elected, and as the Mexican government was letermined to create a furore with their exhibit, they instructed Payen to select thirtyive more men from any government band he saw fit. The organization was made seventy-five in all and was equipped with new instruments, uniforms, etc., at a cost of $12,500. This band arrived in New Orleans at the opening of the exposition and with the first con-cert made such a "hit" that the people talked of nothing else.

But no one knew how long President Diaz would permit the band to remain in New Or-leans. They were in the employ of the Mexican government, and whatever service they rendered to the exposition was given gratis.

Saved the New Orleans Exposition. The exposition management had engaged e services of Currier's band, of Cincinnati to furnish the music throughout the exposition, Sig Payen's organization playing only when they desired to do so, and on special ocsions. But the New Orleans exposition was financial failure. By January 15th, there was no money on hand to pay Currier, and he, oming alarmed, returned to Cincinnati, becoming alarmed, returned to Cincinnati, leaving the exposition musicless. Then it was that the management approached Payen and asked him if he would furnish the music in the place of arrier. Payne replied in the affirmative, ut said that he could not make a contract, as he was in the employ of the Mexican governent, and would receive remuneration for his en in the form of a present.

To this arrangement, when submitted to m for ratification, President Diaz agreed, and instructed the band to remain in New Orleans until March 1st, which they did, beming the feature and main attraction of the

At that time it was expected that the band would go to Washington to participate in the coremonles incident to the inauguration of resident Cleveland on March 4th; in fact, it had been instructed to do so, and the management of the Crescent City exposition was in despair. But relief came at the last minute.
When Sig. Payen began to make his arrangements to proceed to Washington, he was informed by the committee on festivities that his men would have to travel second-class. To this Payen promptly objected, stating that his men were artists, and should receive greater consideration. But no better transportation facilities could be obtained and of ion facilities could be obtained, and on President Diaz being notified of the fact, he instructed the band to remain in New Orleans antil the close of the exposition and his band the toast everywhere. Press and public alike united in sounding his praises and the praises of the band; and could all the flowers that he received during his stay in New Orleans be gathered together they would have been sufficient to strew along the entire oad from New Orleans to Mexico.

On his return to Mexico he was, in recognition of his splendid conduct, promoted to the rank of first captain and made one of the diectors of the conservatory of the capital. The eception he and his band met with on enterng the city of Mexico was something glorious Of course his band was reduced again to the gular number of forty, and several months ater his regiment was transferred to Morelia, and, however much he regretted leaving the apital, he preferred it to leaving his friend nd protector, General Reyes, who made him-elf famous against the French in 1866. Signor ayen established in Morelia a school of arts, ving eighty young amateurs as pupils, whom instructed gratis. This band of eighty, toher with his own military band, which, ce 1888, consists of fifty-six men, often give rand concerts on the plaza. Payen became he idol of Morelia, and a newspaper published t this point recently referred to his approach-ng departure for Atlanta with profound re-

From the New Orleans Papers. Following are a few excerpts from New Or-eans newspapers published during his stay of he band at the exposition in that city: The concert of the Mexican band last evening rew an immense audience, and the selections

The Mexican band occupied the platform. Nearly every available seat was taken. The entrances to the hall and galleries were elaborately decorated with flags, banners and streamers. It was evidently a gala day, one to be remembered in the long years that are to come. As soon as the band struck up all other sounds ceased as if by magic. From the beginning the music was delightful. As it grew in harmony filling the hall with its melodies sweet, entrancing, sacred into-nations, difficult to excel, the enthusiasm of the audience burst its bounds in loud, prolonged applanse. The scene was full of life. The soft magical notes waited from the instruments were rich, voluptuous and charming. The audience was spell-bound. Between the pauses in the tones of the instruments the musiclans themselves would fill in the time by weird modulated chants, that carried the audience away into the realms of symphonies. Encore followed encore. The people came flocking from all parts of the buildings, and the audience remained seated until the last strains died on the evening air, when they gave the band a final ovation in one glorious round of applause. The music had been grand and magical, and the sacred concert. was a wondeful success. New according the success and the sacred concert. The music had been grand and magical, and the sacred concert was a wonderful success.—New Orleans Times Democrat, January 26, 1885.

Will Be Here All the Time. The Mexican band arrives on the afternoon of Tuesday or the morning of Wednesday, and will remain during the entire exposition. Another band has been secured to play daily until the close. This exposition is no small affair. Music will be one of the leading featares, and from early morning until late at night charming and entrancing strains of music will vibrate from one end of the grounds

THE ATLANTA THEATERS. Comedy at the Edgewood Avenue

The representative character of those who are securing seats for the engagement of the Ford English Comedy Company in Atlanta is indica-tive of a brilliant dedication of the new Edgewood Avenue theater. It was just so in Baltimore and Richmond, the turnout of the ladies at the Richmond matines being something pnenomena-in the history of theater-going there. Over five hundred of the best blood of Virginia's fair daughters, the governor of the state and his family, too, were present, and made the occasion one long to be remembered. Wishes for the early Richmond matines being something phenomenal one long to be remembered. Wishes for the early return of the company were general, and the management was congratulated on furnishing to lovers of good acting such a gratifying entertain-management was congratuated on iturnisming to lovers of good acting such a gratifying entertainment.

The following from The Richmond Times will give an idea of the rare treat in store for those who shall attend the performances here:

"An air of real purity and sweetness, as wholesome as it was uncommon, pervaded the performance at the theater last night, and the actors were so unassuming, so earnest and so artless that they carried the interest and sympathy of the audience throughout. A comedicate in one act, called 'Which, was given first, and was followed by Tom Taylor's three-act comedy, 'A Runaway Match.' In each the leading roles were taken by Mr. Wilfred Clarke, who may be regarded as the star of the company, and Miss Martha Ford, a striking-looking daughter of the veteran manager of Baltimore, who has been on the stage only about seven months. Mr. Clarke inherits talent, and he is really clever; he assumes nost conucal parts and fills them creditably, as the laughter of the audience proved. Miss Ford surpasses all expectations for so young an actress. There's nothing stagy about her, and she is as full of promise as she is of intelligence and grace, and her father has reason to be proud of his handsome daughter.'

"Uncle Hiram."

"Uncle Hiram." "Uncle Hiram."

An exchange says: A strong, well-balanced play is "Uncle Hiram," holding its interest to the end, while its comedy elements are in the highest degree entertaining. As the unsophisticated, but withal decidedly sharp old farmer, 'Hiram Homespun," Mr. A. H. Woodhull has broad opportunity for the exercise of his excellent talents as a comedian and author, and does so with irresistible effect upon the risibilities of the audience. "Uncle Hiram" is booked for DeGive's on Wednesday and Thursday.

A Fascinating Actress.

Under that heading an enthusiastic knight of the quill says of Miss Ada Melrose, who is to appear at DeGive's next Friday and Saturday, in "A Southern Rose."
"The critics, in comparing Miss Ada Melrose with Lotta, Kate Castleton, and other notable actresses of the piquant school, invariably pronounce Miss Melrose the most captivating of the class, since she is younger, a better singer and far away in advance of the others in dancing and dramatic action."

"Well, they employ union and non-union men both, but we don't object to that. They do all they can against the union men, and we have a committee drawing up a card for the public, and we would like for you to pfint it." Subsequently the card was sent in, and here

Editor Constitution—I wish to call the attention of the carpenters and joiners of this city to a disagreement which has taken place between union and non-union men in the employment of Peck & Son. Peck wants to uphold the non-union men in defiance of the union. Now, my brothers, is the time to show the stern and adhesive quality of unity against individuality. The carpenters and joiners know full well that all great movements in this direction have failed for the want of solidarity among union men.

The strike of the men is a necessity to uphold the union against unprincipled individuals who seek to advance their own selfish interest by slandering union. men, who are eager to lift the trade from the low level to which it has fallen. But those sycophants who are always to be found in every community, who seek to destroy

But those sycophants who are always to be found in every community, who seek to destroy the harmony of the men, deserve the scorn and contempt not only of men of his trade, but of every good citizen whose desire it is to improve the public good.

Trades unions are the creations of necessity, and will remain so while our present competitive wages system prevails. Defense, not defiance, is their motto. They are based upon the practical recognition of the fact that in unionism there is strength; that the united efforts of 500 working men will secure what the disunited, individual efforts of those 500 will fail to accomplish.

That the same cause will produce the same results whether tested in the industrial centers of Lynn, Lyons or Manchester.

In a conflict between labor and capital labor is invariably placed at a disadvantage. On the part of capital it is a contest for the possession of the surplus; on the part of labor it is a struggle for the absolute necessaries of life.

The Messrs. Peck were at their mill near the East Tennessee shops when seen.
"I don't know that I'd say much about it," remarked Mr. J. C. Peck.

A Suggestion to Southern Democrats. No state campaign of recent years has been comparable in importance to that which is now going on in Ohio. It is important to the whole country, and especially important to the south. It is not, strictly speaking, a state campaign, for both parties, as by a common impulse or understanding, have sent all local questions to the rear and are fighting out on this narrow field the great issues which are to be decided by the two great parties in the national campaign of 1892. This being the case, it is easy to understand why the result in Ohio will be regarded as a forerunner of the result in 1892. Whichever party wins will have the benefit of the impulse and enthusiasm which will follow the victory in Ohio. Perceiving this, the republicans are bending all their energies to elect McKinley. They began the campaign early and they have had at their disposal not only the power and influence of the administration, but an ample campaign fund, made up of contributions from the millionaire monopolists who are reaping the benefits of the McKinley law.

The democrats, on the other hand, have no campaign fund to speak of. They are depending altogether on the justice of their cause. Thus far they have made a canvass remarkable for its brilliancy and thoroughness. Governor Campbell, the democratic candidate, has entered into the contest with an ardor and enthusiasm that have thus far carried everything before them. He has shown himself to be by all odds the most efficient campaigner that Ohio has ever seen. In spite of this fact, however, and in spite of the fact that the democratic cause is one which appeals to the common sense of the people, it is impossible to make a thorough and an effectual canvass without money. There are documents to be sent out, the expenses of speakers to be paid, and the lack of funds is calculated to embarrass the efforts of the democrats.

There has been no outside appeal made for funds to aid in carrying on the democratic campaign, but we have reason to believe that contributions from southern demcrats would be gratefully received and fully appreciated. The result of the Ohio election is of the greatest importance to the south. If Campbell is defeated, the claim will be made that the people of that state have endorsed not only the McKinley law, but the efforts of the present administration to fasten the infamous force bill on the south; and the result will be to give the republican party a tremendous advantage in the national campaign.

We repeat, therefore, that the result in Ohio is of tremendous importance to the people of the south, and if any democrat in Georgia, or elsewhere in this region, desires to give his interest in the Ohio campaign a substantial form, he should address John A. Sarber, secretary of the democratic state executive committee, Columbus, Ohio.

A Man's Home Is His Castle.

The Memphis Appeal-Avalanche calls attention to a Mississippi case in a recent issue of The Southern Law Reporter, and remarks that it determines an issue quite as important as that settled by a South Carolina jury in the Dawson murder case-the latter declaring the defendant not guilty, on the ground that Captain Dawson had invaded his house, or castle.

In the case before the supreme court of Mississippi the issue was similar. One Maury, a negro, had a fight on the highway with Nicholson, a white man. Maury got the best of it, and Nicholson, with his brother-in-law and a dozen men, went to Maury's house one night, without any war-They broke open an outhouse, whereupon Maury, who had collected a number of friends, fired upon the crowd and killed two men. For this Maury was indicted and tried for murder. The lower court charged the jury as follows:

Under the law of this state, any private person has a right to arrest any one who has committed a felony, and when he has reasonable grounds to suspect and believe the person proposed to be arrested to have committed the same, and this, too, with or without a warrant. Even though the parties had no right to make any arrest of George Maury without a warrant, yet if the jury believed that the parties were informed by Cobb that he had a writ for the arrest of George Maury, and they so believed, and acted on such informat and George Maury and those with him wilfully, feloniously and with malice aforethought shot and killed the deceased, then the jury will find him guilty.

The jury in less than two hours brought in a verdict of guilty of murder, and the punishment was fixed at imprisonment for life.

Maury appealed, and Justice Campbell, of the supreme court, reversed the judgment of the lower court, declaring that the facts of the case did not make out the crime of murder. He said that Maury, before the invasion of his premises, had committed no felony, and the invaders had no warrant. It was Maury's right, under the circumstances, to collect his friends to defend his home and person.

Here is another indorsement of the timehonored common law maxim, that every man's house is his castle. In this case the castle was an humble negro cabin, and the invaders were white men, some of whom honestly believed that they had a right to arrest Maury for his fight with Nicholson. But the social status of the parties and their color in no wise influenced the calm judgment of the Mississippi court. Justice Campbell believed that the home should have every possible safeguard thrown around it, and he believed that when he re-asserted the old Anglo-Saxon idea he was strengthening society and rendering a service to civ-

In these days of lax methods it is well to re-establish some of the old landmarks of the law. Especially is it wise to exalt the home, and protect it with the sword of justice.

The Mugwumps of New York. There is no longer any doubt that George William Curtis and the mugwumps who act with him have completely changed their politics-which, to those who are in the habit of shedding their principles once a month, is not a difficult matter. now in favor not only of the McKinley law, but of the force bill. They have not so de clared themselves, but they propose to show where they stand by deeds and not mere empty words.

Mr. Curtis and his mugwump friends de clare that they want to see Jacob Sloat Fassett elected governor of New York. If Fassett can carry New York state this fall, the republican party will carry it in the fall of 1892; so that, by their votes for Fassett, the mugwumps will practically declare that they are in favor of the perpetuation of the Mc-Kinley law and the infamous force bill. As to the latter measure, no reasonable man can say that it is dead so long as there is danger of re-electing a republican administration.

Senator Gorman, who is thoroughly alive to the situation declared in a speech in Maryland last week that the force bill is still an issue. "The bill will come again," said he, "if Harrison is re-elected. Do not mistake the signs of the times. Massachusetts had Lodge, who introduced the bill, as chairman of its republican convention: its resolve was for the force bill. Ohio and every republican state that has acted are for it. The republican party is irrevocably committed to it; their very existence de pends upon it. That question is above taxes and extravagance; it determines the ques tion of the continuance of the form of government under which we live."

We do not desire to be misunderstood We are uttering no lament over the defect tion of the mugwumps. We simply want to show the arrant hypocrisy which animates their action. They have brought nothing but defeat to the democratic party. Their hearty endorsement of Mr. Cleveland in 1888 defeated him. Their enthusiastic opposition added to Hill's majority in the state, and elected the democratic ticket in New York city. We are wasting no tears over their departure. Their support of Fassett will aid in defeating him; and this is the result that all honest men pray for.

Too Much Legislation.

Men who are old enough to remember the general drift of legislation forty years ago, shake their heads ominously over recent tendencies.!

The multiplicity of special laws invoked for real and imaginary evils, bids fair to increase rather than diminish. Monopolies, societies and individuals are all besieging the legislature for laws in their respective interests. A woman unable to procure a divorce will demand relief. In the Indiana legislature last winter a bill was introduced to give the chairman of the committee on bills in third reading a double salary. Congress was recently asked to appropriate $100,000 for a breakwater at Bar Harbor which would have chiefly benefited wealthy vachtsmen and summer residents. In Massachusetts a bill was offered to force idle persons to work for those who were dependent upon them. Another bill granted deaf pupils in the schools the privilege of traveling free over the railroads. The blind and crippled were left to pay their way.

The parental legislation regarding schools and schoolbooks in many states is too familiar to require mention here. But even he social status of persons has become matter of law. In Boston an Italian society asks that "wealthy Italians" be prohibited from collecting garbage!

Look at our laws regulating labor, the hours of work, the employment of children, etc. Hundreds of matters never legislated upon in the past now engage the attention of lawmakers and spin their sessions out to an interminable length. Even in the more conservative states there is a disposition to have purely local matters decided by the general assembly instead of being settled by the county and municipal authorities.

Perhaps all this hastens the coming of new slavery in which the state will be sole master, parent, guardian and general boss of the most private and personal matters of. business. Such is Herbert Spencer's idea, and we see it illustrated in a practical way by each succeeding congress and legislature. EDITOR WATTERSON has a pet name for Baby Cleveland. He cails her the little star

THERE MAY be trouble in Mexico vet in the shape of a revolution. Sandoval, who is con-cerned with Garza in the movement, was a general in South America. New York, like Atlanta, is now suffering from the nuisance of street ripping. The World shows how it menaces health, and says: "Malarial poisoning is not a disease which shows at once in poisoning is not a disease which shows at once in the death reports. Its work is insidious and slow, but none the less fatal. It develops and complicates numerous other diseases, and often causes a long life of suffering. That this poison is disseminated from open trenches in city streets there is abundant evidence." Admitting the necessity of such work, our contemporary demands that none of it shall be done in the fall, and says that the tranches should be consent no feases then they can trenches should be opened no faster than they can be fitted and filled. can be no legislation. No delegate or the organization will be bound by what is said or done here. The ani-mating purpose is to bring out the brightest and most practicable ideas of the most thoughtful and wisest representatives of the church, and the application of these ideas will be left to the discretion of the separate

Subjects for Discussion

The most radical difference to be noted b tween the coming council and the one held in London is revealed in the list of subject selected for discussion. In the first counc 'Methodism' formed the principal topic of discussion. In this council a programme has diversified so as to touch upon questions of the day. The discussion of abstract ecclesias-tical dogmas finds small space, but whole days are set apart for the consideration of questions relating to temperance, education, missions, Romanism, social problems, the issues between capital and labor, the relation of Methodism to scientific thought, and prace of Methodism to scientific thought, and prac ical church work. The various commit have made all the necessary arrangements for the comfort of the delegates and the conduct of the sessions.

Rev. William Arthur, of London, will deliver the sermon, and communion will be ad-ministered. At the afternoon session addresses of welcome will be delivered by Bishop Harsh, of this city, and others, and the business meeting will then begin.

"Yes, your honor," said a man, stepping for-ward from the crowd. "I am her husband and I want to ask you to be lenient with her. She makes out like she's too sick to work; but if you'll let her off this time I'll see to it that she works in the future and supports her family."
"I don't think you will," said the judge. "In fact, Iam going to let the woman go and send you up for six months as a vagrant. You have no vis-

TODAY TO DECIDE

The Fate of the Honest Man's Friend and Protector Band,

OF WHOM SEVEN ARE ON TRIAL

Emmet B. Stanley in Good Spirits Over the Prospects of His Case—Other Matters at the Custom House.

The famous "Honest Man's Friend and Pro After delays and postponements innumer able, the parties implicated were put on trial yesterday.

The defendants are represented by Colone

Bill Day, of Pickens county, and by Messrs. Glenn & Maddox. Colonel S. A. Darnell is, of course, conducting the prosecution. When court convened yesterday and the case was called, indictments were read vs. James Wigginton, Thomas Bowland, David Mont Holbert, Hamilton Richards, Patton Miller and George Coffey.

There was a great deal of difficulty in empaneling a jury, but after some time the nec essary twelve men were secured. The jury consisted of nine whites and three negroes.

Wheeler, Cicero Padgett, William L. Fields,

Mr. B. B. Crew was chosen foreman. The charge against the men was conspiracy against witnesses of the United States court. The case in itself is an old one. The "Hon est Man's" band was organized for the purpos of putting down all attempts to disturb illicit distillers in their operations. It was a Pickens county organization, and was aimed against revenue officers and informers, or "reporters." The gang wanted the free manufacture of whisky, and to accor plish their ends the members terrorized the neighborhood fearfully.

On November 12, 1890, matters reached climax. John R. Aiken, a witness in a reve nue case against one of the band, was residing in a neat home in Jasper. The "Hones Man's" band visited it that night, and, al though the weather was cold, they set fire to the building and burned it down. The entire family, children and all, were driven out into the cold, made homeless by the mounshiners society. J. A. and Seab Lansdowne, John Foster Harrison Jones, Tom Fields, Tom Penly and Eli Fields were arrested as participants in this dastardly crime. They were brought before the superior court at Jasper, found guilty of arson and sentenced by Judge Gober to the penitentiary for life. Seab Lansdowne was one of those killed in the recent Coal City up rising. Those on trial now were later arrested the charge of conspiracy, and it was set for the United States circuit court. For nearly a year it has dragged along, and on yesterday trial finally began.

"Guilty or not guilty?" was put to the nine men as they stood ready for a hearing. Every man but two signified either by ar answer or by silence that he wished to plead not guilty and fight the case.

Not so with George Coffey and Patton Miller. Their reply was "guilty," and the men will furnish evidence against their former associ

When everything was under way, a technicality claimed the attention of the court. The statute under which the men were indicted makes it an offense to injure any witness in the United States courts. Mr. Glenn raised the point that a commissioner's court was con cerned in the case, and that it was not a rea court, nor did it have the dignity of one: that the statute referred to a court such as the circuit.

recess for one hour at 1:30 o'clock and then continued the discussion. Judge Newman finally decided that while the United States commissioner's court was not a court in itself strictly speaking, yet it formed a constituent part of the circuit court.

The case was then about to go before the ury. The witnesses were ready to be sworn, but it was late in the afternoon, and an ado'clock. Then the fur will fly in earnest, and the men will, do doubt, learn today whether s term in Sing Sing or Columbus, O., awaits

About thirty witnesses will be introduced Aided by Friends.

The friends of Emmet B. Stanley have be quietly at work for the past few days. In consequence, they have gotten his case so arranged that Stanley feels very confident of easily settling his affairs. He has regained his former good health, and all that now remains is the arrival of his mother, who is on the way to Atlanta. The amount of defalca tion will be paid back. Of that, there is no doubt. No one will be a cent loser, neither Uncle Sam nor the Fidelity and Casualty Company. The grand jury will take up the case today, but Stanley firmly thinks that it will never reach the courts.

"Mother and I," said he yesterday, "will attend to everything, and in a few days I expect to be all right again, without any one having suffered any at my hands. My friends have done much for me and I shall show them that I appreciate it."

Work to Be Appreciated.

The postoffice authorities were never so busy as now. The changing of street number is the cause. Yesterday they began to ar range a scheme for the local delivery of the mail, in order to make it conform to the ne numbers. This will require the careful work of several men for fully a week. Had the carriers not been thoroughly acquainted with the city, the great inconvenience and trouble caused by the change could hardly have been

"You have no idea of the amount of work "You have no idea of the amount of work we have to do," said Postmaster Lewis yesterday. "Atlanta is a growing city, and the large influx of people and their constant moving about causes more labor than would be imagined. We have an order book on which are entered the names of every one who moves or who comes to Atlanta, to whom mail is delivered. There are from forty to sixty entries per day.

"Then we arrange them in alphabetical order. When this is done we transcribe the names and addresses into our directory, which is arranged so that every other page is a blank one. That makes a valuable aid," and Gender of the control of one. That makes a valuable aid," and General Lewis opened a book with an addition of of several thousand, names. "Each carrier must in turn copy the names that happen to fall in his route. This is what we have had to do all along," continued the postmaster. "Now consider the increased confusion and difficulties with the changes in street numbers."

bers.

"There is one matter in which the city council could greatly assist us and lighten our load. There are two Highland avenues and two Arthur, Ella, Herbert, Henry and Peachtree streets. It's decidedly perplexing at times."

Recently the local postorfice adopted the plan of exchanging advertised letter lists with every other postoffice of reasonable size in Georgia. Despite the increase in business, the dead letter office has received from these places hardly a half of the former mail. The system is a thorough success.

Deputy Collector J. O. Thompson and Deputy Marshal Henry Gibson yesterday captured an illicit distillery in Randolph county. They seized and destroyed a forty-gallon copper still, cap and worm, eight fermenting tubs and 1,500 gallons of beer. The place belonged to Messrs. Caldwell and Hogan. The Admitted to Practice. Mr. White H. Daniel, of Franklin, Heard county, passed a very creditable examination yesterday, and was admitted to practice in the United States courts.

Mr. J. F. Blodgett, of the railway mail service, returned yesterday from a tour of inspection in the fourth division.
Mr. M. B. Frank, of the railway mail service, has returned to Atlanta from a pleasant visit to his home in Jacksonville, Fla.

TOLD IN THE CORRIDORS.

The Ocala platform resolution which is now waiting its turn to be taken up in the house will not be a bugbear after all. Colonel Liv ingston, who spent Sunday at his home in Newton, returned Monday morning and reg-istered at the Markham. Speaking of the probable direction of the resolution, he said that he thought it would be modified into an appeal to the representatives and senators to support such tax and financial measures as will do most to relieve the country.

Captain Dan Purse was a pleased man last night. Although a Savannahian he is almost as well known in Atlanta as a native. After that trip of the legislature to the coast few weeks ago he was given the password signs, grip and tokens of a full member of the general assembly. But to the story. He is the most active member of the com mittee to which Savannah has entrusted the work of pushing the three-million-dollar appriation for her harbor through congress. The eason he was happy last night before his departure for his home was the progress he had ade in Atlanta. In the first place the senate passed a resolution Monday morning directing Governor Northen to communicate with the governors of a dozen states in the south and west and request the executives to ask their respective legislators to endorse Savannah's project. These general assemblies will also be ask urge their congressmen and senators to bely Georgia's representatives and senators in getting a big appropriation.

This resolution went through smoothly and it will likely come up in the house today for concurrence. Governor Northen has promise to take the matter up as soon as it reaches him in the proper shape.

Then Captain Harry Brown came back from Washington with strong letters from the na-tional alliance leaders. President Polk, Dr. facune, Messrs. Dunning and J. H. Turner, of the executive board of the national alliance all gave Captain Brown ringing letters to the Captain Brown has been engaged to visit several state alliances and bring the imporance of deepening Savannah's harbor befor As illustrating the extent of the interes which Savannah is enlisting, some extracts are here given from the letters referred to.

President L. L. Polk wrote:

In view of the growth and development of the south and west, and whose interests demand the cheapest and most accessible outlets to the world for their products, and in view of the superior advantages, geographical and otherwise, offered by the port of Savannah, I heartily commend Brother Brown and the worthy enterprise he represents to your most favorable consideration.

Dr. Macune, and the other members of the executive board, wrote:

Believing that unity of interests begets unity of sentiment, and that by the establishment of close commercial relations between the south and west sentiment, and that by the establishment of close commercial relations between the south and west, we can more thoroughly establish that sense of mutual interest, and more effectually eradicate the lines of sectional prejudice, we deem it but right that everything looking to these ends should be encouraged.

And since the state of Georgia, by her legislature and through her state alliance, is appealing to congress for a sufficient appropriation to deepen the channel to the city of Savannah, and since this port is one of the natural-outlets for the produces of the south and west to the trade of the world and will establish for our people direct trade with foreign ports, and furnish a competitive market for all our products as against markets of the northeast which now monopolize our commerce, we earnestly recommend that our alliance brethren of the western and southern states examine into the question thoroughly and see how greatly they will be benefited by shorter routes to the sea and competitive seaports, and when convinced of all these facts that they may make their wishes known to their congressmen by petitions urging them to do all in their power to secure for the port of Savan-

Mr. Dunning said that he has examined the project in which Savannah is interested, and he believes "it would aid materially in the equitable distribution of the fruits of labor."

Captain Brown started out yesterday morning on a tour in the interest of deep water. Messrs Copeland and Daniels, alliance lecturers, are going over Georgia now talking up the same cause. The movement is thoroughly organ ized, and as the machinery is being largely worked from Atlanta, it follows that every thing is going along hummingly and that deep water will be obtained. Atlanta has no such word as fail in her lexicon-whether she is working for herself or helping a neighbor.

Senator Lane, of Emanuel, had a bunch simon pure wire grass yesterday morning and of the chamber. The sample was two feet long, and as one of the dignified senators handled it he said: "This recalls to me the days when I was a boy. I grew up in the wire grass country. At one time I went to a school taught by an old gentleman who walked slowly and with difficulty. We mischievous boys would tie wiregrass across the path ahead of the teacher and then hide to see him trip up, and as sure as his toes got tangled up in the loops, down he would go.'

Judge Robert Falligant, of the eastern circu came in late yesterday over the Georgia road. He is going higher up in the state this ing. His honor is interested in the bill to change the time of holding Bryan court, as the month. March, fixed by the bill would conflic with the Chatham court, and his docket there is always heavy in the first month of the spring term. Judge Falligant represented the first district in the senate six years ago. He is one of the greatest wits and best after-dinne speakers that ever responded to a toast.

Good ballet dancing, he thinks, is as beautiful in its way as music, and the average morality of ballet dancers is about as good as that in other branches of female labor.

It unfits a man or boy for any other business, and is apt to make a kind of respectable vagrant of him."

The Grand Banquet Given Them by the Guards—Welcomed by Colonel Cal-houn—Taking in the City.

The Davy Crockett hook and ladder company, of Poughkeepsie, N. Y., is the guest of the Gate City Guard, of this city. They arrived in the city yesterday afternoon, just before 4 o'clock, on a special train over the Western and Atlantic road. On the train were about one hundred people, members of the visiting fire company, their guests and the Twenty-first Regiment band, of New York. The special train consisted of three elegant vestibuled cars and a baggage car.

At the depot to we'come the guests were the Gate City Guard, a delegation from the Northern Society, Chief Joyner, of the Atlanta fire department, and the Fourth Artillery band.

The visitors were marched into the armory where a pleasing sight greeted their eyes. I was a table, extending all around the large room, covered with snow-white linen and laden with such a feast as would have pleased the eyes of epicures. The visitors and the Guard ranged them selves about the room, and Colonel W. L. Cal houn made a happy address, welcoming the visitors to Atlanta in behalf of the Guard, the people of the city and the Atlanta fire department. The speech was heartily cheered. In concluding, Colonel Calhoun introduced General J. R. Lewis, Atlanta's postmaster. "There is no better place anywhere," said General Lewis, "than Atlanta. She has good people, good homes good water and the best climate in the world. I would be glad if Henry Grady were alive today to welcome you to this city he loved so well. No one can do it as well as he.

"I have lived in Atlanta since 1867, and I know her and her people. When I say to you that Colonel Calhoun, who introduced me so kindly, is a confederate veteran, you have clasped hands with the grand army men, and all past differences have been forgotten.
"Whatever we can do to make your sojourn pleasant in our city, I assure you we will do.
We welcome you to Atlanta."

Mr. Derrick Brown, editor of The Evening Enterprise, of Poughkeepsie, was called upon, and made the response to the addresses of welcome in behalf of the visitors.

"We are overwhelmed," said he, "at the cordial reception you have given us, and, in behalf of the Davy Crockett hook and ladder company, permit me to return to you our sincere thanks. We have heard so much of this great section, and of Atlanta, that we have long wanted to pay you a visit. heard so much about your hospitality that we naturally expected to be kindly received, but I must confess that this grand reception you have given us is far beyond our expectations. You have already made our visit to Atlanta a success by the hospitable way in which you have received us. I thank you again for your hearty welme to Atlanta.

At the conclusion of Mr. Brown's speech the band played "Dixie" and the visitors were ushered to seats around the festal board. Captain Kindrick and Lieutenant Ben Goldsmith saw that all were comfortably seated and properly waited on. For an hour the guests enjoyed the rich feast and sparkling wine which had been spread for them, and while not even half of the magnificent dinner had been dispatched, they were forced to abandon all ideas of the total consumption of the provisions made for Today's Programme.

This morning at 9 o'clock the visitors will be given a carriage ride over the city and the points of interest shown them.

Tonight from 8:30 to 9:30 o'clock the Northern society will tender them an informal reception at their rooms. All members, with their ladies, are expected to be present.

The party will leave the city tomorrow morning at 6 o'clock on their return.

CEREMONIES AT LONE GRAVE.

Most Impressive Exercises Held at the Lone Soldier's Grave Yesterday. On the 8:10 train on the Western and Atlantic road yesterday morning, a party of con-federate veterans left the city for, Allatoona

They were going there to meet the Davy Crockett hook and ladder company and to hold ceremonies over the grave of a soldier who sleeps at the quiet base of Allatoons mountain, within three feet of the railroad

In the party were Colonel W. L. Calhoun, Dr. W. M. Durham, Major H. Franklyn Starke, Judge Robert L. Rogers, Dr. K. C Divine and others. They were supplied with lovely flowers to decorate the dead patriot's grave. A two hours run brought them to the little mountain village of Allatoona, which was made famous by a terrible and bloody conflict during the late war.

"There's the federal fort," exclaimed Dr. Durham, pointing to the top of a tall hill, at whose base the railroad track wound around, as soon as he had alighted, and then, pointing to the west: "Right over there, beyond Pumpkin Vine creek, is where the terrible engagement at New Hope church took place. I was there, and I know."

As the party had still quite a while to wait for the visitors, a trip to the old federal fort was suggested. Accordingly the veterans began the long ascent of the steep mountain side. Up its slippery sides they clambered, grasping every now and then at a scraggy bush to keep from losing their foothold. At last the top was reached, and there was the fort.

There was where Corse's men had held at a fearful loss of men this little spot against the desperate charge of the confederates.

Stretching on every side was a magnificent panorama. Far to the south Konnesaw's rugged sides rose up, and further yet Lost Mountain looked like a daub of paint on an artist's canvas. To the north long ranges of hills marked the course of the Etowah valley.

The fort was as perfect as when first made. There were the embrasures for the guns and there were, still undecayed, the old chestnut logs that had served as head pieces for the federals twenty-seven years ago, last Tuesday.

"This fort," said Judge Calhoun, "is the fort that inspired the song, 'Hold the fort, for I am coming.' When Corse was about to give up in desperation, he saw a signal on far-off Kennesaw yonder, from Sherman's army, which said: 'Hold the fort, for I am coming.' This inspired the writer to compose the now famous hymn."

At 1:30 o'clock the special train bearing the Davy Crockett hook and ladder company drew up and stopped at the lone grave, just about two hundred yards beyond the depot at Allatoona.

They alighted and crowded around the lit tle mound. It was well kept and two marble slabs marked the head and foot of the grave. slabs marked the head and foot of the grave. On the headstone was inscribed the words, "An Unknown Hero. He Died for the Cause He Though's Was Right."

As the visitors, over one hundred in number, pressed together about the grave they institutively waited their bate.

Colonel W. L. Calhoun opened the exercises by making a short address of welcome. His remarks were beautiful and impressive.

Mr. U. L. Ferguson, post commander of D. B. Sleight post, Grand Army of the Republic, No. 20 responded. "This coming together hy B. Sleight post, Grand Army of the Republic, No. 20, responded. "This coming together by this dead soldier's grave, of the blue and the gray, will be a lesson that will show that we have forgotten sectional bitterness and strife." After his address the Twenty-first Regiment band played and sang, "Asieep in Jesus." On every side the everlasting hills stretched their heights toward the heavens, and down through the wooded ravines the sweet notes of the funeral hymn floated and on to the once bloody, but now deserted fort. By the side of the grave stood a federal veteran with an empty sleeve, and as verse after verse of the beautiful song was rendered with exquisite sweetness a tear trickled down his furrowed cheek.

After the song, a touching prayer was offered.

After the song, a touching prayer was offered.

Then Mr. Madison Mattern, Hiram McNamee, J. B. Dickson, all of whom have been commanders of the Grand Army of the Republic posts, stepped forward in the order named, and, with a few remarks, placed beautiful floral offerings on the grave.

Then every member of the party marched around the grave and decorated it with flowers.

After this was done, Mr. Derrick Brown was introduced, and recited the following poem:

Where prayers are Iew, no tear drops shed Above the lonely nameless dead, My sweetest buds are strewn; I weave my roses in a crown And lay my fragrant blossoms down, Where sleeps the brave unknown.

O, south wind waft your fragrant sighs, Where orange buds are blown,
And swing the pure magnolia bloom
A gleaming censer of perfume

When dew and rain and smiling sun,
Their round of duty each hath run
A father's love was shone;
First Decoration Daytof God,
When spring's bright blossoms kissed the sod
That covered the unknown.

Uproot the bitter hate and strife Uproot the bitter hate and strife
Implanted with each buried life;
Let seeds of love be sown
And blossoms of sweet peace and trust
Shall flourish o'er the sacred dust
Of those we call "Unknown."

I pray when comes the grand review,

And each true soldier—gray and bue—
Shall stand before the throne;

When sounds the roll call loud and clear,
That every soul shall answer "Here,"
Be counted with the known."

Mr. Brown followed the recitation of this 'In the light of this hour,' said he, "may all prejudices be forgotten; may all the peo all prejudices be lorgotten; may all the peo-ple of this country come into closer fellowship; may the spirit of fraternity, unity, good will and national pride actuate the people in all sections of our country, and assist in carrying our country forward to the highest possible destiny among the nations and the people of

"May the ashes of this dead here here ever hay the saines of this dead need here ever rest in peace, while his soul shall eternally bivouac on the shining and everlasting fields of glory."

Mr. W. C. Lansing, city editor of The Poughkeepsie Evening Enterprise, was next introduced, and recited a beautiful and appropriate poem.

The band then played "My Country, 'Tis of

One by one the visitors filed slowly from the "They carved not a line or raised not a stone, But left him alone in his glory."

At the train they looked back.
The lonely, flower-covered mound looked deserted now indeed. The October winds rustled the leaves of the rees that stood sentinel by it, as before. Only "That's some mother's son," said a federal Judge Rodgers grasped him by the hand.

"He's our soldier now," said he, "whether he wore blue or gray."
Soon even the noise of the special train had died away toward Atlanta.

A Card of Thanks.

From The Marietta Journal.

Out of the depths of my sorrow and bereavement, I desire, in behalf of myself and family, to give some expression of gratitude to the many, very many, friends who have, like "ministering angels," rendered such valuable assistance and tendered words of sympathy and consolation as the impenetrable shadows of gloon enshrouded our home and hearts. Only those who have "loved and lost" can fully enter into our great and overwhelming sorrow. Our friends have greatly helped us to bear our crushing burden. The telegrams and loving and tender letters received by every mail from sympathizing friends are treasured and appreciated, and are wet with our tears. Those good friends in Atlanta, Marietta and elsewhere, who sent in great profusion beautiful flowers for our "precious dead," have won our undying love. To Mr. J. D. Woodworth and his most estimable family, and also to Rev. J. W. Baker and beloved family, into whose homes our dead, dying and wounded loved ones were received and tenderly cared for, we can never cease to thank and honor. Every impulse of gratitude that we are capable of goes out to them for their manifested solicitude, kindly attention and loving words. To the young gentlemen who accompanied the remains to their instruction, and, also to Mr. Joseph M. Brown, of the Western and Atlantic railroad, for volunteer and greatly appreciated courtesies, language is linadequate to express to each and all of them my sincere thanks for this great mark of their sympathy in the several ways mentioned. My prayer is, that fod in His mercy may spare them and theirs from a like terrible visitation as has blighted our hearts, but may He reward them for their sympathy and kindness by the richest of His grace and blessings. Yours gratefully,

The Famous Medical College Enters Upon Another Year of Usefulness.

DR. OLMSTED'S OPENING ADDRESS.

He Discusses "The Doctorin His Relations to Society" in a Masterful Manner-The School Has a Large Attendance.

The formal opening of the Southern Medical college occurred yesterday morning.

The annual address was delivered by Dr.

John C. Olmsted at 11 o'clock a. m.

The discourse considered "The Doctor in His Relation to Society," a subject of universal interest, and it was handled in a masterly way by the speaker, who has made it a life

There was an inspiration in the address to the student of medicine, who soon is to realize that relation, while it will interest any one that understands the personnel of the "family

Said the speaker, after a brief introduction: "I confidently assume in the premises that the doctor is as interesting as he is an important character in his relations to society. His is also the noblest of professions, not excepting, perhaps, the Christian ministry; for in the sacredness of its duties and obligations, and in the unselfish devotion required it is, in my humble opinion, second to none. Have you, young gentlemen, who aspire to the priesthood in this temple of medicine, reflected upon the serious responsibilities which you invite. Have you considered the lofty aims, the self-sacrifice for the good of others, the purity of mind and heart, which should characterize him who enters here?

"Of the profession of medicine it has been truly said, 'it is the noblest of professions and the meanest of trades.' That the trade spirit is abroad in certain quarters of the profession is not to be denied; and is only an admission that medicine, like everything else human, has been to some extent contaminated by the money-getting craze of this age. But, thank God, there is yet a goodly host of followers with whom its primitive doctrines and traditions of charity and unselfishness are yet vital principles and perennial truths. Such as these uphold their noble art in all its primal beauty and deliver it from the withering blight of mere self-seeking gain.

That the doctor has a right to expect compensation from his professional work is not in antagonism with the foregoing. He too must 'live,' and even St. Paul declared of the sacred ministry, that God had ordained; that they which preach the gospel should live by the gospel. Yes, the doctor and the preacher must live, although some people, in their treatment of both, seemed to have forgotten this important But for all true and good physicians wealth must be a secondary consideration when compared to the accumulation of that imperishable treasure of good deeds and holy charities, in an impregnable character, which neither the 'moth' of greedy gain, nor the 'rust' of unfeeling selfishness, can 'corrupt,' 'nor thieves' of time serving policy, 'break through and steal.' "The public think it strange to hear physicians speak of the fascination which accompanies the study of our art," continued Dr. panies the study of our art," continued Dr. Olmsted. "Literature, painting and music do not yield arf enjoyment more keen than that which is offered by the study of medicine. This enthusiasm is indispensable, for, indeed, the doctor often has, in the words of the old song, 'A hard road to travel.' With days of toil and nights often devoid of ease, and not seldom, perhaps, with ingratitude as the reward of his patient and well-directed efforts, he must find his consolation and happiness in the higher realms of his noble calling, in its

he must find his consolation and happiness in the higher realms of his noble calling, in its intellectual triumphs and the consciousness of duty well performed.

"Upon the personal relations of the doctor to the families in his practice it is almost needless to dwell. With what eager anxiety is his coming awaited in times of sickness! With what a sigh of relief his well-known form is seen approaching, or his kindly voice is heard in the sickroom! How anxiously his is heard in the sickroom! How anxiously his face is scanned as he examines the patient, and what attempts are made to read things in the depths of his, clear, calm eyes! How in critical moments the troubled souls hang upon every word he utters, as if upon his dictum depended the fate of their loved ones! Ah! well, the doctor knows and feels all this, and bears away with him the weight of it, and it furrows the doctor knows and feels all this, and bears away with him the weight of it, and it furrows his brow and silvers his hair. The doctor is always a welcome and honored guest in the social life of his patrons, their tried physician and friend, he is sure to receive every consideration, and the esteem in which these hold him makes up for and heals the wounds inflicted by shafts of ingratitude received from patients of another sort.

meted by shall find 'quiet coves' of happiness and 'still waters of comfort' for him whose calling brings him so constantly in contact with the darker side of life; with the tact with the darker side of life; with the sickness and pain and sin inseparable from our 'frail mortality.'"

A full body of students are in attendance this session, and it bids fair to be the brightest in the career of the Southern Medical college. An unusual percentage of old students have returned, some of whom took the first course searly a 1865. Peopler lectures before as early as 1886. THE NEWS OF SOCIETY.

The Cobb-Barker wedding occurs this evening, and to be present thereat have arrived many friends and relatives from a distance. It is the first wedding of the season to take from the ranks of Atlanta girls a noted belie and beauty, and, although it will be a home affair, all the old friends of Miss Barker will have an opportunity to wish of Miss Barker will have an opportunity to wish her bon voyage upon the matrimonial sea as soon as the quiet ceremony is over. The bride's gown and those of her three maids of honor will be marvels of good taste and elegance, and there seems to me something particularly pretty and refined in the idea of a wedding at home witnessed only by the few people one holds nearest. I could never see any reason for having a lot of indifferent lookers-on at one's wedding or funeral. These events seem essentially sacred to a select few and there is a discordance somewhere when folks in general are allowed at such times.

THE GERM THEORY.

Within the past few years a new theory of disease has arisen with the Medical profession, known as the Germ Theory, which has developed into a distinct branch of science, called Bacteriology. According to this Theory, all endemic, epidemic and contagious diseases are produced by minute infecting germs or microbes (micro-organisms) peculiar to each disease, which enter the system as mentioned in our treatise, page 12, under the heading "WHAT IS BLOOD POISON?"

It has heretofore been held that the unbroken skin presents an im-It has heretofore been held that the unbroken skin presents an impenetrable barrier against the exit of these microscopic germs (microscoci, bacilli, etc.) when they have once found their way into the system, and as it has been demonstrated that a remedy which would destroy these germs would also kill the patient, it has been a great want of the profession to know just how to treat the disease brought on by these microbes. But recent investigations in this branch of science, by Prof. Von Bumer-Zurick, as reported to the Congress of Surgeons at Berlin, and confirmed by a report of Prof. Eiselberger, of Vienna, show that these germs can be expelled from the system through the pores of the skin. It was demonstrated clearly that these germs can pass, do pass, and can be forced to pass from the blood, and from the tissues through the healthy skin to the surface of the body and thus relieve the system of disease.

To prove this Theory experiments were made with two men with a

To prove this Theory, experiments were made with two men, with a horse, a dog, and a hog, six times in a week—and in every instance the germs or microbes were found in the perspiration, showing that they had been eliminated through the skin.

Now, as SWIFT'S SPECIFIC has for about sixty years been relieving humanity of disease in just that way, we think we can but add the result of these experiments to the thousands of testimonials which we these germs, or pathogenic microbes, from the blood and tissues, thus bringing health and happiness to thousands, and it is a part of science at this late day to corroborate our Theory and show just how it is done.

We claim, then—and not only claim, but prove by these reliable witnesses—that SWIFT'S SPECIFIC forces out these germs of poison; and it does more than that, it forces out the poison itself after the body has been infected and polluted with it. For instance, in the disease of Scrofula, if there should be an ulcer or a sore, the poison will be forced out through that sore or ulcer, and the germs will be forced out through the skin; and it is the same way with any other infection—when there are no correct valeers the germs are forced out through the skin; which sometimes sores or ulcers the germs are forced out through the skin which sometimes causes redness and a rash, and even swelling, as mentioned in the general

The chaplain prayed that the removal from the life that now is, from its duties and pleasures, might be sanctified to the good of each senator and remind each one of the solemn fact that some day, unknown till it comes, there will come to all the same black-winged messenger that came to the now dead senator in his far-off home.

On motion of Senator Johnson, of the twenty-first district, the rules were suspended, and the bill to appropriate $500 to renovate the portraits of distinguished Georgians and other distinguished men was taken from the table and put on its passage.

The original bill required that these portraits be placed in the hall of the house of representatives, but the senate tinance committee, to which the bill had been referred, tacked on an amendment that these portraits be hung in some suitable room in the capitol.

Senator Lane, of the sixteenth district, spoke against the bill. "We are loaded down now with appropriations," said Senator Lane.

"Let this bill go over to the 'extlegislature. We are like the Baptist preacher who prayed for rais and got too much. We are overdoing the thing a leetle bit."

Senator Callaway, of the seventeenth district, knocked out Senator Lane by simply stating that every day which delayed the renovation of these portraits piled up more expense to the state. It was economy to have the work done as quickly se possible.

The bill passed by a big majority.

Senator Johnson, of the twenty-first, said the railroad committee was hurrying along as fast as the serious questions involved in that bill would ailow. The committee had to hear friends of both sides of the bill.

Senator Cabaniss withdrew the resolution on the assurance of the chairman of the railroad.

Senator Callaway opposed the bill because he did not believe it was constitutional. He wanted the bill sent to the judiciary committee to see if it could pass muster. Senator Lane said if the bill got into the hands of that committee, then goodby to it. We want the money, and let's tax these

Mr. Mosely, of Decatur, offered the following resolutions in the house:

Resolved, by the house of representatives, of the state of Georgia, That we deplore the untimely death of this distinguished citizen and able legislator, and express our deep and heartfelt sympathy to his bereaved family. In his death the state has lost a wise and patriotic citizen of the district which he honored, a faithful and careful legislator, ever ready to defend the right, and prompt to condemn the wrong. His public service illustrated his high-minded statesmanship, whilst his private life exhibited that purity of character and generous spirit which made him beloved and admired by all.

Senators, we have lost a most valuable aid, and his people and the people of Georgia a capable and upright legislator.

But two weeks since I parted with Senator O'Neal, and he then looked the very picture of health—of energetic, strong manhood, and today he lies clothed in the habiliments of death. The substitute, which I aided to draft, seeks to control that association by establishing a commission to fix maximum insurance rates. There are several objections to the senate bill. In the first place, it belongs to that class of anti-money legislation which impedes the natural influx of capital into the state. Then, again, the bill will not be, and cannot be, effective. These insurance companies can still combine outside of the state. But granting that the association could be broken up, its most immediate effect would be to drive our local companies to the wall by a tempe rary cutting of rates, to be followed by a rise to recoup losses sustained in the fight. I do not believe in legislating against our home

"Now, as to curing the evils complined of, the substitute to establish an insurance commission to fix maximum rates seems to me to be much the wiser and better plan. By that means the people will get some permanent benefit—a result which I do not think would follow the passage of the senate bill.

"The minority report from the finance committee, favoring the substitute, is really a majority report in numbers—that is, it is signed by more members than voted for what is called the majority report. Even the chairman of the finance committee signed the minority report."

"I do not believe the house will pass the extreme senate bill, but only a vote can settle

Representative W. H. Davis, of Burke, is noted as the handsomest member of the house. Davis is likewise one of the brightest young lawyers of the legislature. He will be a candidate for solicitor general of the Augusta cir cuit to succeed Mr. Boykin Wright. Bill is a good politician and will make a lively race.

There are a number of members of the legslature who have the congressional bee buzzing vigorously in their bonnets. Colonel Bill Clifton, of Savannah, expects to be able to write M. C. after his name within a few years. Senator Terrell is mentioned often by his friends as a good man to fill a seat in congress from the fourth. Colonel W. Y. Atkinson is likewise prominently mentioned. The chances are that Congressman Moses will have both of these gentlemen to contend with next fall. And of course ex-Congressman Tom Grimes will be in the race The two Bobs-Whitfield and Berner-are the candidates of the next house for Mr. Blount's seat from the sixth. Senator Cabaniss will likewise probably be in the race. All three are strong in the district and the race will be an interesting one.

In the ninth Mr. Twitty is spoken of as a andidate against Colonel Winn. Colonel Bob Lewis, of, Hancock, is spoken of and would have strong support in a race for congress from the tenth. He would give Tom Vatson a lively race. The Williams' jury bill was buried beyond resurrection by the house yesterday.

In speaking of it Mr. Williams said: "I did my best. I made an argument in favor of two-thirds of a jury in civil cases finding a verdict, and I challenged any man on the floor of the house to refute my arguments. They cannot be answered. The idea, in this day of progress and business methods, to adhere to an old barbarous custom of making every man agree in civil cases is to absurd to consider.

"My bill would have passed with a full It only lacked fourteen votes of getting the two thirds constitutional vote when it first came up, and many told me they voted against the bill then under a misapprehension There are 175 members of the house, and there were only 118 members who voted. DeKalb county's delegates to the road con ress, which convenes in Atlanta the 28th. were selected yesterday in Decatur. The meeting was held in the courthouse and was a large and enthusiastic one.

Mr. W. G. Whidby occupied the chair while Judge J. N. Wilson acted as secretary. A resolution providing that the chairman should appoint five delegates and that he should be added to the list with the powers chairman was adopted. Mr. Whidby then appointed as that delegation W. J. Stirring addresses were then made by S. G.

Huchcock, A. M. Holcombe, T. S. Chewning,
D. Roberts, G. M. Underwood, Judge I. N.

Wilson, W. J. Houston and the chairman in fator of the organization of an agricultural society for the county. It was conceded that it was a movement in which all the citizens of DeKalk could strike hands, and a meeting for the first Tuesday in November was called to perfect the organization. At that meeting every district will be fully represented.

THE NEW YORK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, October 6.—The stock market today, to the surprise of the street and many operators, failed to display either the volume of business or width of fluctuation usual of late, and the market at times was positively dull. The apparent check to the buying movement was due in great part to the persistent circulation of rumors of a new issue of bonds by the Northern Pacific, and of rumors of influential firms in financial difficulties. The opening showed that the efforts for lower figures begun yesterday had not been given up, and these efforts received final encouragement from the heavy selling for foreign account right forts for lower figures begun yesterday had not been given up, and these efforts received final encouragement from the heavy selling for foreign account right at the opening, which resulted in making the first prices in the active stocks generally large fractions lower than in last evening's figures. The demand, however, was sufficient to turn the course of prices in an upward direction, and for a time the market presented a strong front, with Missouri Pacific, Rock Island and Bituminous Coal stocks showing great strength, Tennessee Coal rising 3 per cent to 41. The hammering, however, was incessant, and when the demand siacked away prices went back again, and in the downward movement Rock Island was specially prominent under the heavy pressure. Atchison still led the list in point of activity, but there was a marked falling off in its volume of business from that of the last, few days, and its movements were made within narrow limits throughout the day. The general list displayed little or no feature of interest at any part of the day; but, as a rule, Missouri Pacific, Wheeling and Lake Eric preferred, Lake Shore, Lack-awanna and Chicago, Burlington and Quincy showed the greatest strength. In the afternoon Eric securities became a leader in the activity, while rising 11; per cent from its lowest point in the forenoon. Preferred stocks and bonds followed, and the strength shown had a good influence on the other parts of the list, most of the stocks again being brought up beyond their opening figures. There were no developments to account for the sudden spurt, but influential traders were large buyers of stock on the advance. Some of this improvement was lost late in the day, but the market finally closed quiet but firm, generally at insignificant gains over the first prices, and with most of the list practically at last night's figures. Erie is up 1 per cent and Tennessee Coal 15s, but the rest ere only slightly changed for the day. Sales of listed stocks, $55,000 shares; unisted, 30,000.

By Private Wire to Youngblood & Haas.

NEW YORK, October 6.—The London market was a seller today to the extent of 10,000 shares, and quotations sold off about by per centail around. The room traders were again arrayed on the bear side of the market, and, as they sold quite a considerable amount, it was an easy matter to make them cover. Erie was taken in hand and advanced 1 per cent, and this rallied the whole market. Speculation was small and ission orders were few and far between. the first time in two months, the traders w the first time in two months, the traders were the most important factors. The meeting of the Central Traffic Association takes place in Chicago Thuraday to find some remedy so that seaboard wheat is not diverted from Chicago and shipped to the seaboard via Duluth and St. Louis. Although the receipts out west have been very heavy, still the cast-bound shipments of last week show a decrease of 12,000 tons in comparison with the year previous. A good deal of stuff that was heretofore sent east is now being sent south to New Orleans and Galveston. The market closes fairly steady. Prices are about the same as last night.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, October 6.—[Special.]—Business in Manchester must be satisfactory to the spinners, as their purchases in Liverpool upon a Manchester unrect day are full and caused a rapid recovery of the decline in the arrival market. Our market, under the fear of heavy receipts, opened easy at three points decline, but recovered to close steady at an advance of six to seven points from the lowest price. The receipts continue fully up to expectations; in fact, they are excessive at the interior towns; but the confirmation of crop damage received through private sources by the Georgia and Mississippi-state reports were the factors that furnished the substantial support to the market. In Georgia the condition is reported at 75 Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular. narket. In Georgia the condition is reported at 75 against 93 per cent last year. In Mississippi the report states the yield shows a substantial falling off, whether compared with an average crop with last sesson's crop. A sharp covering demand from local sources was a feature. The cold wave west of Kansas falled to bring the predicted frost. A weak feature in the situation is the small demand from the continent and the accumulation of cotton in the ports. A better market is expected before the bureau report is issued on Saturday by The Trader, and no disposition was shown to sell on the close of the market. sell on the close of the market.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in CHICAGO, October 6. - Wheat was strong and higher.

They were aided in the ear part of the session by good purchasing orders for Ne York account. There was free selling by the leadin commission houses, and trading became somewhat excited. Lamson Bros. & Co.'s Grain Letter. By Private Wire to Youngblood & Haas.
CHICAGO, October 6.—The closing feeling of the market yesterday was rather weak. This morning th public cables were lower; the English visible suppl ncreased about two million bushels; the weekly shi ments from Indian and Russian ports increased abo two million busheis, and a weaker opening was gener ally looked for. The scalpers, however, were disap pointed, as they have been a good many times of late pointed, as they have been a good many times of late. A few orders from New York opened the market about 1/26 higher than yesterday's close, and advanced steadily to about 90c, when a few selling orders, principally local, checked the advance, closing firm at about 3/16 higher than yesterday. Some later cables to a Chicago house, also to one or two New York firms reported a steadier market and a better demand. We think the action of the market rather indicates a higher opening next Thursday, owing to the selling of a pretty large line of corn held by some local parties. That cereal was quite weak and lower near the open-That cereal was quite weak and lower near the open-ing; the cash and shipping demand was good, and the market became strong and active and generally in the market became strong and sellers' favor.
The demand for oats was good, dealers and shippers absorbing all the sample lots offered.
The trade in provisions was very light. The holders of mess pork appear to be growing tired of the deal, and are gradually selling out. The only feature of the hog product was a dull, declining market.

THE RAILROADS.

What Is Going on in Railroad Circles and With Railroad Men.

TRAVEL IS INCREASING VERY RAPIDLY.

Boifeuillit's Bill Does Not Worry Bailroad Men-Captain McBee's First Strike.

The passage of Mr. Boifeuillet's anti-boybott bill by the senate yesterday did not worry the railroad men much. Most certainly there were no signs of distress about the railroad offices. This bill was framed to meet the boycott declared against the Georgia Southern and Florida by the other roads when it reduced its rates below 3 cents per mile. Other roads refused to sell tickets over the Georgia Southern and Florida and cut it out of some through business. The anti-boycott bill is in-tended to prevent this and prohibits any road from refusing to sell tickets over connecting There is just one thing in the way, though, yet. The legislature may lead the railroads up to the trough, but it cannot make them drink. They may be required to put their tickets of con necting lines on sale, but it is another matter to make the companies sell by a route which they wish to shut out of through business. Of course, if a passenger insists on having a ticket over a certain route, the agent must sell the buyer what he demands. On the other hand, if the traveler is not particular he will be furnished a ticket by a route other than the

All the passenger agents report increasing travel. Local travel is getting brisk, too, and especially over the East Tennessee. Local passenger traffic is the best paying, too, in propassengers pay 3 cents a mile straight while the through business has to be prorated, and that, too, on the basis of the shortest line. Suppose a passenger is going from A to D, a distance of 1,000 miles, by the A B D road. But, perhaps, he goes by the A C D route, which is 1,200 miles. When the fare is divided up by the roads in the long route some of them get a very small percentage for their share. One of the connecting lines might get almost nothing for hauling a through passenger 150 miles, whereas, it would get $4.50 from a local traveler over the same distance.

General Manager W. H. Green, of the Richmond and Danville, was locking over some of the South Carolina branches yesterday.

A railroad man who knows the general superintendent of the Central well said yester-day, in speaking of the trouble with the laborers at Savannah, that it was not the first strike Captain McBee had handled. He had had some experience a few years ago at Char lotte, when 300 negroes went out of the yards on him. He sent out in the country all along the road and brought in new labor by the train load and put the green men right at work. The strikers soon weakened and wanted to get back, but they were told they had better look for work some place else. Two or three years after that Captain McBee was put in charge of another division and he found a number of the strikers at work there. Most of them were first-class laborers. As soon as McBee found them out, he asked them if they were going to strike on him again.
"No, Cap, we done striking on you," they replied. They added that they just wanted to hold the jobs they had. McBee kept them, and he declares that he has never had better work than those fellows did so long as they

"The superintendent was the coolest man on the whole division during the strike," re-marked a bystander. "I was in his office one day when the situation looked pretty squally. He was going through his mail leisurely, and no one would ever have imagined from his unconcerned manner that his wharf was block-aded. He said everything would be straight-ened out by the end of the week, and it turned

Tyler, of the Western of Alabama; Dan Curran, of the Montgomery and Eufaula; J. J. McKinney, of the Mobile and Montgomery, and the Alabama Midland people, with Captain McClintock, manager of the car service of Birmingham, a car service association for Montgomery was organized under the name of the "Car Service Association of Alabama," taking in all existing and hereafter to be formed similar associations in the state, to take effect in a few days.

STILL THEY COME.

Superintendent Slaton Besieged by Applicants for Places in the Public Schools "I don't know where they all come from," said Superintendent Slaton yesterday afternoon, when some fifteen or twenty children pressed him for school tickets.

"I'll issue the tickets," he said, "but I don't promise that you will be able to get into the chools, for they are all filled to the utmost

"But," objected an irascible man with two "But," objected an irasciple man with two fine looking children, "I have gone and had my two girls vaccinated and paid out two dol-lars. Now if you don't give them places, the city of Atlanta will be defrauding me out of lars. Now if you don't give them places, the city of Atlanta will be defrauding me out of my two dollars."

About this time a lady spoke up: "It was published in the papers that the new school would take the children in my neighborhood, and I live within a block of the Gartrell house, and yet you say my children can't get in! Why that is simply outrageous."

"I am besieged all dav long," said the superintendent, "by just such persistent and unreasonable people as these, and yet I must be polite to all."

"The truth of the matter," he continued, "is that we need two more schools right now. We have enough children to fill them at once. I don't know what we are to do. The new school is filled, and yet scores of children who live in that neighborhood are clamoring for admission. Something will have to be done, yet what that something is, I confess I do not know. We are doing the best we can, and the schools are getting along admirably. They never before worked so smoothly as they are now working. I receive only good reports from all the schools, white and colored. But we want more school room."

The declining powers of old age may be wonderfully recuperated and sustained by the daily use of Hood's Sarsaparilla.

in a Church Choir.

An ex-mayor in a church choir,
That's what Atlanta is to have within the next two weeks.

Professor Calvin B. Rhoads, once mayor of Wilmington, Del., is now on his way to Atlanta, where he will make his home, giving his time to the choir of the Church of Immaculate Conception and to musical matters. In his profession, the ex-mayor stands high, and as a gentlemen he is equally happy, as a Wilmington paper shows. Here's what it says:

Ex-Mayor Calvin B. Rhoads has accepted the position of choirmaster at the Church of the Immaculate Conception, Atlanta, Ga., and accompanied by Mrs. Rhoads will go south next week, probably on Thursday. The position is an excellent one, and he was persuaded to accept it by Vicar General Kelley, formerly of this city. The church is in Bishop Becker's diocese and Vicar General Kelley is its pastor. It is one of the finest churches in the south.

Mr. Rhoads came to this city eighteen years ago, and during his stay has taken a most active part in educating Wilmingtonians in music. Many of the local occalists who have achieved a musical reputation were his pupils. At one time he or his pupils were leaders of all the Catholic choirs in the city, and at the same time pupils of his were leaders of St. Andrew's and Calvary choirs.

Immediately after coming here he became choirmaster at Trinity church, and held the position for ten years. In 1874 he became musical director of Grace Sunday school and continued as such for twelve years. He was choirmaster at St. Peter's Pro-Cathedral for seven years. He organized St. Patrick's choir, was musical director for Grace Sunday school and continued as such for twelve years. He was choirmaster at St. Sunday school. He was the first paid quarter choir in this city. He was musical director of St. Andrew's Sunday school. He was instrumental in securing for William J. Fisher, one of his pupils, the position of choirmaster at St. John's church, and he had charge of the music on the occasion of the ovation to the late Bishop Lee when he r

Merchant Tailoring.

Atlanta is fast becoming headquarters for mer-chant tailors of the south. People used to, and they do now, to a certain extent, send to New York tor their tailor-made clothes. But things have changed wonderfully in the last five years, and Atlanta merchant tailors have done a fine business. The fact is, the people have found out that they can get as good goods and as neat a fit right here in Atlanta as they can by going to New York. Furthermore, the charges are much less. Atlanta, as has already been stated, can boast of a great many merchant tailoring firms, notably among them Mr. Harry B. Elston, located at No. 3 East Alabama street. He is what you call "Ave and let live." While the product of his factory is as good as that of any other, he charges a small price, and you know that is to be considered these hard times.

He has now an elegant line of suitings, overcoatings, vestings and everything in the merchant tailor's business. His patterns are the very latest and most stylish to be found anywhere. In plac-ing your order for your fall and winter suit, re-member Mr. Elston. He will treat you properly.

of train robbers. Horton, Thornton and Braswell, the three men who robbed the express car at Colliers, on the Central road, a few months ago, are the Cause of the contemplated wholesale murder.

These men, it appears, have friends who are now free, and who have been working to secure their release. In all their work, however, they prefer to remain in the background. Before the men were removed from the Monroe county jail, it became an absolute certainty that an attempt would be made to rescue them if they were not removed, and this information was really the cause of their removal to

Since the trio was brought to Atlanta sev eral unknown parties have called at the Ful-ton county jail and requested to see them, but all requests have been denied, except where the parties were known to the officers.

Now the friends of the trio have changed their tactics Recently the officers who were engaged in the arrest have been receiving threatening letters from parties claiming to be warn friends to the prisoners. These letters contained demands and concluded with threats in event the demands were not complied with. Of course the officers paid no attention to the letters and then the writer began weighting the mails with epistles to the express company Here is one received in Atlanta vesterday:

The letter came addressed to THE CONSTI-TUTION, and is reproduced literally. When it was shown to a Southern Express man yesterday, he said:

"It's only a similarity to what we have been

"What do you do with them?"
"Toss'em away. What else can we do?"
The prisoner when told of the letter laughed

heartily, but added:

immunity from insect pests of all sorts, especially mosquitoes. The entire summer passed and there were no complaints about mosquitoes, for there were none to complain about But with the advent of October came millions of the vocal and venomous insects. Whence they came and why they came nobody knows, but they are here in countless numbers and in great variety.

Everybody is abusing the nocturnal pests, and the merchants are doing a rushing busi-ness in selling nets. And the druggists are busy dealing out "mosquitive" and "penny-royal," two fluids the pungent odor of which ll drive away mosquitoes-and will also drive away steep.

There are many ladies who wear gloves at night to protect their delicate hands from the envenomed bills of these winged invaders. Some of these mosquitoes are loud and shrill singers, and the sleeper is warned of their coming, but others are perfectly silent until their maws are filled with human blood; then they sing in ficacish give. These predatory insects possess another peculiarity. They can gain a surreptitious entrance into any net, no matter how carefully its corners are tucked. The hapless sleeper has carefully arranged his net, and falls asleep with a feeling of sweet security. He laughs at the mosquitoes as they fling themselves turiously against the netting, but later, after a dozen or so of these hungry marauders have slipped in and begun to insert their hills into his creaning these have are him. their bills into his creeping flesh, then are his

The Course of Empire, poet informs, is westward. Emigrants in that lirection should be provided with Hostetter' Stomach Bitters as an antidote to malaria, th bane to newly settled clearings. Travelers, tourists, miners, navvies and mariners use it with advantage.

The Force of Habit.

The Force of Habit.

Habit, so said, is second nature, but not necessarily true. We all admit that certain habits are quite strong and very hard to overcome. So much so that sometimes it seems impossible to break them. But with a proper amount of determination and perseverence few, indeed, will fail. Habit sometimes becomes a disease. Then you need help. Lack of exercise, improper living, excessive indulgences, etc., often produce habitual consupation, and following this piles, fistula or some disease of the bowels which makes it necessary for you to have professional services. It is not only unnecessary for you to continuously take medicine, but it is decidedly injurious. Remove the effect and then treat the cause in a commonthe effect and then treat the cause in a common-sense way and a cure will result. It takes time to sense way and a cure will result. It takes time to do this, but if you persevere you will be fully repaid for the effort.

Many ladies suffering in this way become the victims of serious uterine diseases. This should not be, nor is it at all necessary, for if you will give me the opportunity I can cure you. My experience is large. In fact, I have given the best years of my life to the study of these troubles, etc. Does my experience entitle me to your consideration? Respectfully,

Hirsch Bulding, Atlanta, Ga. sun, wed, fri
